KALIFORNSKI

NEWSLETTER OF THE YUGOSLAV-AMERICAN CULTURAL ORGANIZATION - NO. 12 June, 1980 P.O. BOX 226, Watsonville, CA 95076 Circulation 425

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

by

Andy Gulermovich

I feel very honored in having been chosen as YACO's President for the next year. I will do everything in my power to insure that YACO grows and matures into an organization in which we can all be proud. In this first "message", I would like to spell out a few ideals that I feel we should attempt to attain. Hopefully, we will develop into a large and significant group and as is in our By-Laws "bring the Yugoslav community together in a poud body", and "to instill in our membership a pride in our cultural heritage and traditions." We as an ethnic group can take pride in our past contributions and in the future add to our parents' and grand-parents' legacy.

Further, I would like to see YACO develop into an organization that is both well known and well regarded in our community. Pat Solano and the other founders planted the seeds over the past year. It is up to the new leadership of YACO to see to it that these seeds are nurtured and blossom in a productive manner.

Our past contributions have been vast and varied. We are a great people and ought to be extremely proud of our heritage. Over the next twelve months our meeting programs and our newsletter THE KALIFORNSKI will be geared towards making you more aware of Yugoslavs' accomplishments. In the process, we hope that you will #### (Pres' message cont'd) be proud, not only of YACO, but of the entire Yugoslav community.

One thing that can not be left unsaid. This organization would be nothing without your support and attendance at YACO functions. In this we are truly grateful. If you continue to participate in a similar manner in the future, our viability as an organization is assured.

As outgoing editor of THE KALIFORN-SKI, I would like to thank all those wonderful people who assisted in its publication. Many thanks to Ron and Babe Hill who helped assemble our newsletter in its early stages; also to my wife, Pat and my daughter, Teri, who saw to it that THE KALIFORNSKI was assembled over the last few months. (With an 18-20 page newsletter, our house was quite a mess during assembly). Regular contributors to THE KALIFORN-SKI were Pete and Margaret Biskup, Lillian (Jercich) Nielsen, Nevenka Novcich, Babe Hill, John Basor, and Pat Solano.

They all provided columns and stories that were of regular interest and delighted our readers.

Lastly, a gigantic thank you to my two associates during the past year; John Basor and Susan Solano. It fell to Susan to see to it that the thankless job of typing the newsletter was done each month. Her dependability, competence, and dedication is all the more remarkable when you stop to consider that she is only a junior in high school. To John Basor, my most sincere gratitude. John, from issue #1, supplied me with more articles than I could use in addition to contributing a regular monthly column. Also, John secured numerous advertisers for our newsletter. I can honestly say that John and Susan were indispensable to me.

Again, thanks very much to one and all who contributed to our newsletter. I have enjoyed editing and writing THE KALIFORNSKI and sincerely hope that you have enjoyed reading it.

Guest Speaker

In addition to our JUST DESSERTS potluck on June 1, 1980, YACO is pleased to announce a most interesting program. Francis Violich will narrate a slide show featuring several Dalmatian towns and villages focusing on the islands of Brać, Korćula, Hvar, and the Peljesac peninsula. His slides are new and breathtaking with some aerial shots.

Mr. Violich is today a Professor of City Planning at the University of California at Berkeley. He is a native of San Francisco and grew up amongst the Yugoslav community there. His father came to the United States in 1889 from Peljesac. His mother came from Brac in 1889. Mr. Violich first visited Yugoslavia in 1937. In 1979 Professor Violich was awarded a Fullbright to lecture and to do research. He has promised however, that it will not be as an academic talk, but rather as one Slav talking to another Slav about Dalmatia. We are sure that you will enjoy his slides and narration immensely.

Come, share in an enlightening and enjoyable evening with your friends. Share also a dessert that you choose to bring and we will have hot coffee for all to enjoy.

We are 2 months away from our big 4th of July Bar-b-que... the first of many to come. Our Yugoslav trip tickets will be on sale that day also ... Have you had your hair done in a shop lately? Why not try our very own MARY VRANJAS. I bet you'll like it... ANDY SOLDO was presented with an award at our last meeting... This was just one of BOB HUBAL's great ideas... He was listening to ANDY's program on his way to Stockton good reporting BOB.... We would like you to know that we are now sponsoring a scholarship fund (It's a first for any Yugoslav organization in Watsonville) ... If you would like to donate to this cause, please call ANN SOLDO, the chairperson of that fund... I'll bet you didn't notice any difference in THE KALIFORNSKI, well... PAT SOLANO is the new Editor ... the change took place in April. Congratulations PAT and good luck!... You know who among us is a Salad Master? ... Don't say I told you, but it's ED JURACH... You'll find out on the 4th of July... I was talking to NANCY BIJELETICH the other day and she tells me that the Santa Clara Valley Jr. Tamburitzan & Mladi Seljaći have been asked to participate in the National Tamburitzan Festival in Denver, Colorado on the 4th of July. (Cont'd next page)

(Orchids cont'd) You'll remember them from the Veseli Seljaci program in March... Let's give a round of applause for those youngsters. ... Congratulations from YACO... Thanks to John Lukrich for the generous donation of some box labels... real oldies... Did you see the picture of our YACO Youth in the local paper? ... You know who set that up?... TIM GOSPODNETICH, Jerry's boy ... You know the wine man. Good job TIM... YACO needs you. Your Nosey Newser came up with this little bit of news: TERI GULERMOVICH (Andy and Pat's daughter) will be doing summer studies in Yugoslavia this year. Many accolades TERI... If you missed the last regular meeting with NICK DERPICH and SIMON RADOV, you really missed a goody!!! It brought back many stories my own father (ANTONE BRAUTO-VICH) told us as children... So many experiences, alike, and yet so different. We should demand a repeat performance. Nosey Newser strikes again. ... MR. SIMON RADOV plays a very very old accordian... do you suppose that with a little encouragement he would play for us?... Let's ask.... Didn't the elections run smoothly?... not exactly a new slate of officers, but a very good bunch ... Welcome and good luck... We were town to Pacific Grove and Carmel over the weekend, and if you haven't done this for a while, try it. It's beautiful!!! Dinner at the Outrigger... Very nice... See you next month...

Marinovich

By Adam S. Eterovich

A very popular Croatian name, Marinovich, or Marinovic, is found in every part of the country with heavy concentration in Dalmatia. The name originates from the roots "Marine-Marin-Marinich-Marincich" with the root meaning 'from the sea.'

Coat of arms were granted in the early 1800's and the individual from whom the namesake evolved was a captain of the marine. Captain Marinovich was murdered in Venice in 1845.

Examining the Marinovich coat of Arms, one may note the various nautical items included on the crest, such as the ship and anchor. The colors of the arms are blue for the horizontal lines, red for the vertical lines and silver for the white portions.

Notable namesakes of the Marinovich family were: Andria, who died in 1833 at New Orleans; Antonio, who was naturalized as an American citizen in 1845 in Mobile, Alabama; Mateo, Mitchell, Nikola and John, who were mining gold in the Amader region of California in the 1870-1880's; Thomas, who had a saloon in Yolo County, Calif., in 1879; Antonio and Nicola, who were pioneers in the Santa Clara orchards in the 1880's; Andro and Mike, who were in the Santa Cruz-Watsonville area in the 1870's; Frank, who was fishing in San Francisco in 1860, and Mitchell, who told the census-taker in 1860 at San Francisco that he was a Turk!

From New Orleans to San Francisco, the Marinovichs were making their homes and raising their families as true American pioneers "from sea to shining sea.'

MARINOVIĆ

Piše: Adam S. Eterovich

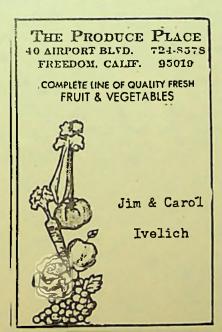

Marinović je vrlo popularno Hrvatsko ime. Može se naći u svim predjelima stare domovine a najviše ih ima u Dalmaciji. Ime dolazi od Marine, Marin, Ma-rinić, Marinčić. Grb im je oto godjetjen u početku 1800. godine. Osoba koja ga je primila bio je kapetan Marine. On je bio ubijen u Veneciji 1848. godine. Boja grba je označena ovako. Vodoravne crte su plave boje, vartikalne crte su crvene boje a bijeli dio je srebrn.

Andria Marinović je umro 1833. godine u New Orleans a pokopan je bio iz St. Louis katedrale. Antonio Marinović je postao Američki državljanin 1845, u Mobile, Alabama. Marinovići su bili članovi Slavonic Zajednice u New Orleans, Mateo, Mitchell, Nikola i John su kopali zlato u Amador regiji u California 1870-tih i 80-tih godina. Thomas je imao gostionicu u Yolo County, California 1879; Antonio i Nikola su imali voćnjak u Santa clara 1880-tih godina; Andro i Mike su bili u Santa Crus, Watsonville okolici 1870-tih godina: Frank je bio ribolovac u San Francisku 1860-tih godina a Mitchell je popisniku stanovništva u San Franciscu 1860-tih godina rekao da je on Turčin!

Marin Marianović je oženio Irsku djevojku u San Franciscu 1860-te godine. On je imao pet kćerki i bio je vlasnik gostionice. Marinovići su bili Američki pioniri.

LUCICH is found in many areas of Croatia and Dalmatia. The name originated among old Bosnia nobility that later settled in Dalmatia and the Boka Kotor. Related names were Ivelich, Ricich, Berislavi and latinized as Lucio. Lucich probably belonged to the ancient Croatian nobility.

Mario Lucich served as a private in Captain Cognevich's Company, Louisiana Militia Volunteers, Confederate Army of 1861. Many Luciches settled in the South after 1800. Anthony Lucich died on Oct. 6, 1842 in Mobile, Ala. and Luca Lucich died on Sept. 7. 44. In New Orleans at the age of 28. Many died of yellow fever during this period. Many belonged to the Slavonic Society of New Orleans in the 1870's.

The Lucich clan also were pioneers of old San Francisco. Vincenzo and Peter were fishing at San Francisco in the 1870's and belonged to the old Slavonic Illyric Society of 1857. Andrew Lucich had a coffee house on Stewart Street in 1872 where Antonio was a waiter. George and Theodore were gold mining on the El Dorado, Calaveras and Amador in the 1870's. Both were U.S. citizens. Lucich and Medin Saloon at C and Union Streets, Virginia City, was the center of activity during the silver boom of the 1960-70's. Medin went on to become a millionaire.

Lučić

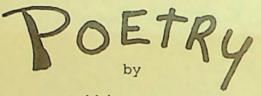

Lučići se mogu naći u svim predjelima Hrvatske a naročito u Dalmaciji.

Ime je počelo od bosanskog plemstva koje se kasnije naselilo u Dalmaciji i Boki Kotorskoj. Srodna imena bila su Ivelić, Račić, Ričić, Berslavi a bili su latinizirani kao Luci. Lučići su vjerojatno pripadali hrvatskom plemstvu Ancient.

Mario Lučić je služio u kapetana Ciganovića kompaniji, Louisiana Militia Volunteers, Confederate vojsci 1861. Mnogi Lučići nastaniše se na jugu nakon 1800. Anthony Lučić je umro na 6. oktobra 1842. godine u New Orleans u 28. godini starosti. Mnogi su pomrli od žutice u ovom periodu. Mnogi su takodjer pripadali Slavonic Zajednici u New Orleans 1870. godine.

Lucić porodica je bila dobro poznata u starom San Franciscu. Vincenzo i Petar bili su ribolovci 1870. godine u San Franciscu. Takodjer su 1857. bili članovi stare Slavonic Ilirske Zajednice. Andrew Lucić imao je kafanu na Stewart St. 1872. a Anatonio je bio konobar. George i Theodore kopali su ugljen na El Dorado, Calaveras i Amador 1870. Obojica su bili državljani Amerike. Gostionica Lucić i Medin na C i Union St. u Virginia City bila je centar aktivnosti u vrijeme pronalaska srebra 1860-70tih godina. Medin je kasnije postao milijuner. Originalno pročelje gostionice se jo uvijek nalazi na C St. u Virginia City.

Our Travels In Yugoslavia

by Peter and Margaret Biskup

Of course we'll never forget Stella Lucich and her late husband "Blondie" Lucich whom we chauffered around Konavle and Brać and enjoyed every minute of it, especially the barbeque Blondie had for his friends, relatives and neighbors in Ložisce where he was from and of course that is in Brać.

Also during '70 and '71, Mary Gizdich and her late husband Vincent, Mike Zanki, Mark Vranjes, Tony Maglich, Father Albert, Nick @erpich's nephew, Bill Resetar and his late father Louis, Steve Radin and his daughters and Anka Bulaich visited us and believe me it does your heart good to see your hometown friends when your so far from home. Another couple I forgot to mention was Frank and Mary Saveria who picked us up in Dubrovnik on their way from Cavtat to Zvrkos near the beach in Sapad for lunch.

After arriving home in December '71, we found that we had a lot to do around the ranch especially on the house which was heavily damaged by fire shortly before we came home. Therefore we weren't able to travel again before '74.

We had been driving the VW we had brought with us but decided we would like to have a newer, bigger and better car So we ordered our Audi through "Europe by Car" in San Francisco to be picked up in Salzburg, Austria. So on September 16, 1974, we flew from San Jose to Los Angeles to Belgrade and after spending a night there proceeded by train to Salzburg.

That train ride in itself was an unusual experience we'll never forget. As you probably know the R.R. cars in Europe are divided into compartments with a seating capacity of about 6 or 8 people. Besides us two there were 4 men returning to their jobs in Austria and 1 lady returning home to Salzburg. after visiting her sick mother. They brought a goat skin bag of dry crumbled cheese soaked with olive oil and a pogača of bread and of course insisted that we eat with them and kept razzing the other woman about what she was going to do when she comes home and finds 4 feet instead of 2 sticking out from under the blankets. The farther (cont'd next page)

(Biskup cont'd) we traveled the worse it got. We were really happy when we reached Salzburg. In Salzburg we were scheduled to spend the night in the "Europa" Hotel near the station but when we got there it was full up. The desk clerk got in touch with a Yugoslav that had a small hotel and so we finally got to bed. (More next month)

We are proud of the birthplaces OLIB

by Andy Gulermovich

Olib is a small island in the northern Adriatic about 25 miles from the mainland. The large island of Pag is situated between Olib and the mainland. Olib, itself, is somewhat hourglass shaped. It comprises some 8 square miles. Olib is 6 miles long and narrows in its central section to a width of less than 1 mile. The island's highest point is Kalac, (elevation 210') which is in the southern part of Olib.

The highest point in the north is Poljina, elevation 100'. There are a series of small dry valleys which run down to the coastline towards small coves and inlets. The largest cove on the west side is Luka Olib and is the only anchorage for larger vessels. The east side has a much smaller cove, Slatinica which is much shallower than Luka Olib.

There are no above ground streams or springs on Olib. Lush Mediterranean vegetation characterizes the western part of the island. There are groves of holm-oaks (evergreen) whose foliage resembles holly. The eastern and southern parts of Olib contain grazing areas for sheep. Local products include wine, olive oil, and cheese. The only settlement on the island is called appropriately enough, Olib.

Olib has been inhabited since Roman times. From the year 1409, Venice controlled it and leased it out to wealthy noble families from Zadar. The parish church (still in use) was built in 1632. The nearby rectory contains some 20 Glagolithic (old Slavonic) manuscripts dating back to the 1500's. There is another older church which was restored in 1586. A large tower (Kastel) standing on the edge of the village dates back to the 1600's.

On the western coast in the Banave cove are the ruins of an ancient Roman settlement. Near here also are the ruins of St. Paul's church which was destroyed and deserted in 1202.

The population of Olib is slight and numbered just under 600 in the census of 1972. (Olib at one time was the home of YACO member SIMON RADOV).

While Olib is small, it and its sisterisland Silba were important to the maritime industry prior to steamships. Today, Olib is a sleepy and tranquil island in the beautiful blue Adriatic.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

In the 2nd century, Solin (Salona), near Split, was the main town of Dalmatia. At that time, this city of which only a few ruins have survived, was surrounded by 88 towers and had 50,000 inhabitants.

The Adriatic islands of Velike Orkane and Male Orkane do not have graveyards and accordingly must bury their dead on the nearby island of Susak. The funeral procession consists of a long line of boats with the priest and coffin in the one at the head.

Yugoslavia's longest avenue is to be found between Virovitica and Suhopolje in Croatia. The four kilometre long avenue is made up of 275 gigantic poplars, the trunks of which are, on average, three metres in diameter.

The Secret of the Man in

by Katarina Adanja

the White Shirt

REVIEW JULY 1970

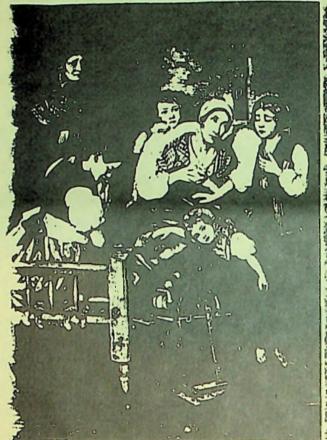

"... that rare thing, a Serbian woman painter. I'm sure that I don't need to say more to a man of your artistic leanings in order to awaken a favourable attitude towards Miss Ivanović..." With these words, General Zah recommended his friend, Katarina Ivanović, the first woman artist in Serbia, to the great champion of the cultural and educational revival in Croatia, Ljudevit Gaj (1809-1872). She was at that time, just about to leave Belgrade after what had been only a very short and somewhat disillusioning stay. She had come to the Serbian capital full of patriotic enthusiasm, convinced that she would be welcomed and given a chance to carry on her work there. She had planned to do a series of historic canvases dedicated to the nation to which she herself belonged. The reality proved rather different from what she had expected. Saddened, but not embittered, she left Belgrade for ever; as her later works were to show, however, her patriotism remained undimmed.

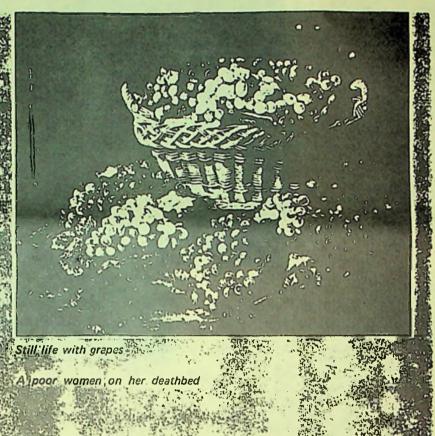

Katarina Ivanović was born in 1817 in the town of Stoni Beograd (Szekesfehervar). Her father, who was a wealthy building contractor, encouraged the talent she soon displayed, and provided her with a chance to develop it by formal training. When his business failed, a wealthy family friend took over responsibility for Katarina's artistic education. Her interest in art did not meet with the approval of her conservative and petty-bourgeois milieu. Her protector, seeing that the atmosphere of the provincial Danubian town was inhibiting rather than stimulating his charge, decided to send her to the eminent Hungarian painter, Jozsef Pesky, in Budapest. Here she made rapid progress, and the imposing self-portrait she painted of herself in lavish evening dress made a dramatic impression or her contemporaries, and attracted the attention of a Countess Csaky, thanks to whose intervention, Katarina went to study in Vienna. Here too, prevailing Victorian conceptions about a woman's rightful place militated against her; painting was regarded at best as being an amiable, but minor and supplementary accomplishment for a genteel young lady. The most she could do was to enrol in 1835, in a special department of the Viennese Academy for Women. After two years of absorbing new impressions, she again painted a self-portrait. This is one of her finest and most popular works. One or two insignificant flaws in the modellation and slight anatomical imperfections notwithstanding, the Vienna self-portrait is a worthy manifesto of neo-classicism. It is also a manifesto for equality of rights between the sexes in art.

Countess Csaky, continuing to interest herself in the career of her young protegée, now enabled her to move to Munich, at that time rapidly becoming the Mecca of all contemporary artists and replacing Vienna, which was slowly drowning in its own conservative academicism. In Munich, she concentrated on genre-painting; the works of this period again display her mastery in the depiction of fabrics, leather, metal and wood. The canvas Old Woman Saying Grace, probably stems from this period; though strongly reminiscent of the Dutch genre painters, its expressive, use of pastel colours, and "incompleteness" yet mark it as original. After her stay in

Munich, she spent some time in Paris, where she undoubtedly took the opportunity of admiring Ingres' work at close quarters, but little reliable information remains of the details of her stay. It is known that in 1842, she visited Italy.

One of her most fascinating works is undoubtedly the portrait of Sima Milutinović, a native of Sarajevo whom she met in Vienna, and with whom she maintained a long and warm friendship. A poet, politician and adventurer, this romantic figure was at one time tutor to another man of many parts, Petar Petrović Njegoš, the great Montenegrin poet, philosopher and bishop-prince. Milutinović was so enraptured by Katarina's nimble wit and talent, that he dedicated one of his poems "Threesisterhood" to her. Katarina executed two portraits of him, the second of which, Man in White Shirt, is particularly arresting. Warm, soft and technically highly accomplished, though a little indeterminate in form, the strength and manly beauty of the subject is evoked with such passion, even sensuality, that one is forced to wonder what sort of feelings this strange, enigmatic man awakened in the heart of the lonely young woman.

It was under Sima Milutinović's influence that she moved to Belgrade. Her reception was cool.

Not even the fact that she had left the charms of Munich Vienna and Italy behind to come to Belgrade diminished the distrust felt towards this young unmarried woman who travelled alone through the world and engaged in the dubious profession of art. Ultimately, curiosity got the better of superstition and prominent Belgrade personalities began one by one to commission portraits from her: Princess Persida, Stevan Knićanin, Kalina Hadži Rošu, the children of Pavle Stanišić... These works show a certain romantic élan as well as the usual talent and craftsmanship. But sensing that her milieu did not return the love and understanding she felt for it, Katarina became disappointed and finally resolved to go to Zagreb, carrying with her the letter of recommendation to Ljudevit Gaj. However, she did not stay there for very long either, and soon afterwards returned to her native Stoni Beograd, where the dreary provincial atmosphere and her own loneliness gradually began to corrode and destroy her talent.

In 1876, Katarina Ivanović enjoyed a moment of belated recognition. The Serbian Learned Society elected her as their first woman honorary member. In 1882, forgotten by the rest of the world, she died in her sixty-fifth year in the little provincial town where she had been born and spent the later years of her life. She left a legacy and a number of her paintings to the National Museum in Belgrade; to the last she had retained a warm affection for the people and the capital city, with which her only real link was the accident of her birth.

In 1967, in compensation for the injustices done more than a century earlier, her remains were brought to Belgrade and buried in a place of honour in the Belgrade New Cemetary. It was a belated response to the appeal with which she had prefaced her bequest: "I hope that the Serbs will honour my work and keep me in their memory."
